I do not feel that the penalty phase of the trial adequately addressed the severity of the crime committed.

I do feel that Microsoft is continuing to engage in the same behavior with the bundling of Windows Media Player, et al, in Windows.

I do feel that the penalties from this trial should include a very significant fine for past transgressions and a means to prevent Microsoft from acting in a similar manner in the future.

Give the penalty phase some teeth. Please. Free us from this innovation-stifling corporation.

Thank-you.
